Our Programs

North Dakota Rural Water Systems Association's (NDRWSA) four USDA funded programs provided almost 1400 on-site technical assistance visits throughout the state of ND during the past year, requiring our staff to travel close to 110,000 miles! Under the Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA), water systems throughout the country face a continuing and complex regulatory burden. This assistance helps communities meet federal SDWA and Clean Water Act (CWA) requirements.

North Dakota Rural Water Systems Association's two EPA funded programs enable us to assist small communities with ground water protection plans that include contaminant source inventories, management strategies, and contingency plans and a training and technical assistance program designed to educate water system personnel to become self-sufficient in all areas of water system operations.

North Dakota Rural Water Systems Association also has a state funded program that aids systems in operator certification and a program funded by the Garrison Diversion Conservancy District that provides water conservation plans for water systems.

Our professionally trained specialists enable communities to save thousands of dollars each year by offering the following FREE services:

- Training sessions held throughout the state of North Dakota
- Leak detection, poly pigging, hydrant repair, gate valve exercising, etc.
- Water treatment plant and wastewater troubleshooting
- Safety Programs
- Water Rate Analysis
- Consumer Confidence Reports
- Wellhead/Source Water Protection Plans
- Water Conservation Plans
- Operator certification training
- Water education handouts and other materials
- AND MUCH MORE!

With just one phone call (800-349-6951), communities are in contact with drinking water, wastewater, ground water, operator certification, training, and water conservation plan specialists, who are trained to assist communities in every area of operation.

Thank you for your past support. We look forward to serving rural North Dakota in 2006 and beyond.
